

SESSION 02 · NICHE REFERENCE

Audiences

The who. Groups a coach can serve — a starting point for the people you are best placed to help.

Not an exhaustive list — a prompt to spark your own ideas

|                      |                                   |                           |
|----------------------|-----------------------------------|---------------------------|
| CEOs & CFOs          | Millennial Women                  | Remote Workers            |
| Retirees             | Startup Founders                  | Teenagers                 |
| Single Parents       | Digital Nomads                    | Freelancers & Gig Workers |
| Artists & Creatives  | LGBTQ+ Community                  | Veterans                  |
| Athletes             | Parents of Special-Needs Children | ESL Learners              |
| Corporate Executives | Pet Owners                        | Academics & Researchers   |
| Teachers             | Recent Graduates                  | Newlyweds                 |
| Immigrants           | Podcasters & YouTubers            | Travel Enthusiasts        |
| Food Bloggers        | Real Estate Agents                | Elderly Individuals       |
| Fitness Enthusiasts  | Vegans & Vegetarians              | Expatriates               |
| Aspiring Politicians |                                   |                           |

Pick the groups that pull at you — and add your own, especially the populations you already know from clinical work. That lived knowledge is your unfair advantage.