

SESSION 02 · NICHE REFERENCE

The Niche Selection Framework

Eleven steps from a blank page to one chosen niche. Steps 1–4 are this session — generating a wide shortlist of candidates. Steps 5–11 are Session 3 — scoring each one and selecting the winner.

Objective Select a profitable coaching niche. Do not limit yourself to the menus — use them as inspiration, and add your own.

Part 1 · Generate

This session — Session 2

1 Define your transformations

Look at the Transformations menu and select around three changes you could deliver passionately. A transformation is the "after" your client is buying.

2 Define your audiences

From the Audiences menu, pick the groups that resonate — and add your own, especially the populations you already know from clinical work. That lived knowledge is your unfair advantage.

3 Understand the pain points

For each audience, identify the top 3–5 pain points related to your transformation — the specific issues they most want to overcome, in their words, not clinical language.

4 Construct the proposition

For each audience and pain point, write the line: "I help [Audience] achieve [Transformation]." Aim for several — a shortlist of 5–8 candidate niches.

Part 2 · Score & Select

Next session — Session 3

5 Measure passion & alignment

Rate how strongly each niche resonates with you and fits the work you want to do. 1–10.

6 Gauge market desire

Rate how much the market actually wants this transformation — the strength of the pull. 1–10.

7 Appraise investment readiness

Rate each niche's willingness and ability to invest in solving the problem. 1–10.

8 Evaluate niche access

Rate how easily you can actually reach this group — your access to them. 1–10.

9 Rate solution difficulty

Could you deliver a meaningful result in roughly 8–12 weeks? Score it 1–10, where 10 is easiest and 1 is most difficult.

10 Validate through engagement

Pressure-test the leading niches with real people — confirm the pain points land and gauge whether your solution resonates.

11 Select your niche

Total the scores, weigh your reflection and notes, and choose the one niche to carry forward.

THE LANE, ON EVERY STEP

Every niche must be a coaching transformation — moving someone from well to better, designing a stronger future. It never treats a problem: that is therapy, a different practice. Your clinical knowledge of a group is the raw material; the transformation you sell must stay firmly in the coaching lane.

How the framework splits across the two sessions. Session 2 generates wide — more candidates than you'll keep. Session 3 scores each parameter above, totals them, and selects. Generate first; judge later. Your worksheet mirrors these steps: fill the top half now, the scoring grid next time. The sharper the niche, the clearer everything downstream — and confused people don't buy.
