

Structure

04 · PROGRAM STRUCTURE

Think in journeys, not sessions.

YOUR PROGRAM IS A PATH

Your program is a step-by-step path from where your client is to where they want to be. Every part of it moves them along that path, and anything that does not comes out.

NINETY PERCENT PRACTICAL

Aim for ninety percent practical and ten percent theory. Theory supports action. It never replaces it.

THE PITFALL TO WATCH

A complicated program is not an effective one. The pull for a therapist new to coaching is to show everything you know. Aim for practical results, preferably within eight to twelve weeks.

SLIP – THE TEST FOR EVERYTHING

Simple	Easy to understand and easy to start. If it's complicated, they won't start it
Lean	Only what is needed, and nothing extra. If it's too big, they won't finish it
Impactful	Every part moves them toward the transformation. If it doesn't, it's information they could find online for free
Practical	They can use it this week, in their own life. If they can't, they drift back to how things were

SLIP APPLIES TO EVERYTHING YOU BUILD

The program	One transformation, eight to twelve weeks
The structure	Four to six modules, and three units at most in each
Every session	One objective, and one action they leave with

Every worksheet	One page they will actually fill in
Everything else	Cards, slides, emails, resources. If a part fails any of the four tests, simplify it or remove it

THE THIRTEEN STEPS, IN THREE STAGES

1 · Ask it	If I was [your niche], how would I [your transformation]?
2 · The big questions	Everything that comes to mind. Your own knowledge first. No editing
3 · Keep the essentials	SLIP. Three to five usually survive
4 · Put them in order	The order change actually happens
5 · Modules	One per question, plus Module 1: Plan, Mindset & Success Factors. A one-sentence outcome for each
6 · Detailed questions	Inside each module. No editing
7 · Keep what matters	Three at most per module, using SLIP
8 · Units	Three per module at most, each answering one question
9 · Read it through	Simplify anything a client would not understand the first time
10 · Key ideas	One per unit
11 · Possible resources	Worksheets, guides, tools. List them
12 · Keep it simple	One simple worksheet and one Principle Card per session. Anything more earns its place
13 · Weeks	Eight to twelve in total

CREATE, THEN REFINE

Steps two and six are for letting ideas flow. Write everything down and judge none of it. Every other step cuts, and three and seven cut hardest. A specific, narrow question sets your brain to work on answering it, so the whole structure is built from questions.

COMMON MISTAKES

Too much content. No clear journey. Trying to teach everything. Copying a generic program. Overcomplicating the structure. Your job is to get your client results.

THE LINE TO REMEMBER

*You don't need a perfect program. You need a clear, simple structure that works. Refine later.
Improve with feedback. Keep moving.*
